

Just Beyond the Moon

Written By Alvin Ray Kessinger

12/30/2010

Copy write Registered B M I

I met you there in the garden; to me it was love at first sight.

That old silver moon was shining, oh how it lit up the night.

Your hair was gold as the sunshine, your eyes they sparkled like dew.

I thought to myself she's so wonderful, she must be waiting for you.

Your lips were softer than cotton, your kisses sweeter than wine.

I could hear my heart beating loudly, when you put your soft hand in mine.

It must have been three in the morning, when you said I'll be leaving you soon.

But soon we'll be back together; I'll wait just beyond the moon.

I asked you why are you leaving? was then you started to cry.

My love I don't want to hurt you, I came to this garden to die.

They told me my time here was over, the end will be coming so soon.

So remember my darling I love you, and I'll wait just beyond the moon.

I turned away from you crying, I did not want you to see.

Then to my surprise I saw you, sitting there under a tree.

I walked over and knelt down beside you, your hand it was cold as ice.

I knew I had been with an Angel, an Angel from paradise.

Then I stood and looked up toward Heaven, said I pray I'll be with you soon.

I heard you whisper so softly, I'll wait just beyond the moon.

I'll remember that night in the garden; the flowers were lovely in bloom.

I can't wait to be with my Angel, she waits just beyond the moon.